POETRY.

From the Forget Me Not. THE SNOW .- BY CHARLES SWAIN.

The silvery snows!—the silvery snows!— Like a glory it falls on the fields below; And the trees with their diamond branches appear, Like the fairy growth of some magical sphere; While soft as music, and wild and white, It glitters and floats in the pale moonlight. And spangles the river and fount as they flow: Oh! who has not loved the beautiful snow!

The silvery snow and the crinkling frost-The silvery snow and the crinkling frost—
How merry we go when the earth seems lost;
Like spirits that rise from the dust of Time,
To live in a purer and holier clime!—
A new creation without a stain—
Lovely as Heaven's own pure domain!
But, ah! like the many fair hopes of our years,
It glitters awhile—and then melts into tears!

WHEN MAY I COME AGAIN ?-BY MISS SHERIDAN.

You may come—when you know I've been pleased, And the world seems composed of gay laughter. But when by cross authors I'm teased, Don't come!—for I'm vexed all day after.

You'll be welcome—if I look the same!
But unless you're becomingly drest,
Don't come!—at the door leave your name.

You may come when there's something diverting

You may come when there's something diverting
To tell of dear friends we both know;
But if you suspect I am flirting,
Don't come—you'll be Mounsieur de Trop!

Fine Arts at Munich.—A murderer, under sentence of death, in order to beguile the time, has been moulding the scene of his approaching execution in bread moistened into dough; his head is held up by the executioner—there is a Franciscan friar praying—and to crown the whole, a wooden-legged invalid soldier crying his last dying-speech. Of this immortal specimen ing his last dying-speech. Of this immortal specimen of the fine arts it may truly be said, that in it the staff of life has become the very image of death, and that nothing of the artist's can ever go beyond the execu-

Retort .- "I have always preserved my reputation," said Mrs --- the other evening in the green-room, addressing herself rather pointedly to Mrs —. "You always set a ridiculous value on trifles," rejoined the insulted fair.

A Syren .- Le Chameleon, a new French weekly contemporary of pleasing variety and merit, states that a fisherman at St Valery-sur-Somme has caught one of the fish anciently called syrens. It is a kind of seal with the head and breast of a human form, so that when half out of water it exactly resembled a woman. It is to be sent to the Museum of Natural History.

March of Intellect .- A literal copy of an advertisement of the 20th September, 1834 ;- "A very respectable young man, and a good scholar, whose character will bear the strictest investigation, is desirous of obtaining a situation as journeyman miller. He will make any gentleman a present of £10 who will honor him

Gunpowder .- Two ancient manuscripts in the library of the Escurial, speak of gunpowder as as not being of European invention, but brought from China by the Persians, and thence adopted by the Arabs at the siege of Mecca, by Hajaz, so early as A.D. 691.

The Two Diseases .- After all, there are only two sorts of diseases, says a French doctor-one of which you die, and the other of which you don't .- Chame-

The marriage of Addison with the Dowager Countess of Warwick took place in 1716. By this union Addison became possessed of Holland-house and its domain; but this was a poor requital for what he lost that "Holland-house is a large mansion, but it cannot contain Mr Addison, the Countess of Warwick, and one guest, Peace."

A Moravian Repartee .- Miss Hamilton told us a pleasant anecdote of Hutton, the Moravian, who has morning, "is it true that you Moravians marry without any previous knowledge of each other?" "Yes, may it please your majesty," returned Hutton, "Our marriages are quite royal."—Hannah More's Life.

A Great Man .- A singular case of exemption lately occurred before a Council of Revision in France. A young soldier was sent home because he was of such colossal stature and so stout that he could not march in an infantry regiment, and so heavy that in the cavalry his weight would destroy any horse he might be put

No Bad Idea.-The Eastern nations believe that living eternally in a delicious garden, surrounded by tice beautiful women, reposing on flowers.

The sapient notification, "To be drunk on the premises," which is now required to be placed over the door of every beer-shop, is most scrupulously observed by most frequenters, some of whom imagine that what was heretofore an offence is now a duty enjoined by

The present Emperor of Persia has a poet in constant attendance, whom he extolled to the English embassy as superior to any other bard of the age, and even to any on earth; and not contenting himself with empty praise, gives him a gold tomaun (nearly £2 sterling)

Customers and the public generally, that his Fall and Winter supply of Fashionable Cloths and Cassimeres is now received, which he would be pleased to make to order at the shortest notice.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1834.

Modern Whigism .- We extract the following precious morsels from an article published in the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle, and copied into the Telegraph with approbation. It will be recollected that these two papers are among the ablest of that party, and that they belong to the Nullification division of the Swigs. The principles of these men assimilate so closely with those of the Federal Swigs of the North, that there will be no difficulty in their coming together-nay more, they cannot well keep asunder. Liberty cannot be permanently preserved any where but in a slave country Russia, then, we apprehend, may be considered the most permanently free of any country in Christendom. This sentiment will endear its author to the conservatives of the North :-

From the Augusta Chronicle.

Mr Webster a Prophet !- Read the following from Mr Webster's speech in the Massachusetts State Convention of 1820, and after reflecting on the late frequent violent movements of Mobocracy at the north, say if the terrible phrophecy it contains, is not evidently in a fair way to be completely fulfilled, as it is, partially, al-

"Universal suffrage, for example, could not long exist in a community where there was great inequality of property. The holders of estates would be obliged in such cases, either in some way to restrain the right of suffrage, or else such right of suffrage would ere long, divide the property. In the nature of things, those who have not property, and see their neighbors possess much more than they think them to need, cannot be favorable to laws made for the protection of property. When this class becomes numerous, it grows clamorous. It looks on property as its prey and plunder, and is naturally ready, at all times, for violence and revolution."

Happily for us at the South, our population is sparse and agricultural, and consequently less excitable, and our slavery operates as a restriction of suffrage, and excludes the ignorance of the working class from its baneful influence upon the government; for the working class is always ignorant, of necessity, whatever the country or color, and all ignorance is baneful in its influence, and destructive, when uncontrolled, to every thing it touches. The former French Revolution, which did so much to injure Republican principles, and excite doubts of man's capacity for self government, was right in principle, and in action also, so long as it was controlled by intelligence; but no sooner did the Mob get hold of it, than they sacrificed to ignorance every thing that was virtuous, noble, enlightened, honorable, or scientific. They added another to the thousand other evidences, that ignorant men are incapable of self-government-but it does not follow, therefore, that intelligent men are so. Our opinion is, that liberty cannot be permanently and peaceably preserved any where but in a slave country-and that slavery, and the salutary guardianship and protection which accompany it, is the best and happiest condition for necessarily ignorant men, as it is for children.

We are satisfied, from close personal observation, that the remarks of Mr Webster present a true picture of the present and approaching state of things at the north, and the real cause of it-and they who read our letters from there during the last six months, will remember that we have again and again expressed much the same opinion, both as to the state of things and the cause. We look upon the future prospects of the north as most deplorable. Ignorance has there got completely the upper hand-controls every thing of a public nature and is hurrying every thing onward to violence, confusion and destruction. The public men have been for years servilely flattering the ignorant mass, to gain their suffrages, till that mass very naturally believes itself, and its opinions and wishes, as altogether sovereign, infallible and unquestionable, and will crush at once, any public man who should dare to gainsay it. The cry of those public men against the south, that "the majority must govern," is re-acting with terrible retribution against themselves. Numbers of them have declared to us that all the intelligent men of the north are beginning to see, that the great root of all their evils, is universal suffrage.

Virginia.-The Richmond Enquirer of the 13th inst., in speaking of the political prospects in the Old Dominion, says-

"We repeat the information which we have received from the best and most authoritative sources, that the Spring Elections in Congress will go against the opposition in every district, where there is to be a contestand that they will not be able to carry one of their candidates against us ; that Messrs Allen, Archer, Claiborne, Davenport, Gholson, Gordon, Moore and Taylor, will in all probability be superseded by friends of the Administration-and that Messrs Chinn and Loyall will be reelected. The wheel is turning in the Old Dominionwe are now 'in the midst of a Revolution'-and the fortune of war is going against our opponents.'

Travelling .- The modes of conveyance over this blessed land of Liberty are so convenient and rapid that a large portion of our population are upon wheels one half of their time ; Stage-wheels, Car-wheels, or Steamboat-wheels, for everything moves by wheels now-adays : even the reputation of the Soldier, depends upon his wheeling, as well as the success of the politician, sometimes. A man may cat toast at the Tremont, on Monday morning, and take a dish of tea with his uncle Gadsby on the evening of the Wednesday followingin short, a week is sufficient time to pass from Boston to Washington, see all the sights of the Capital, and return to the spot of departure. But this sort of flying is not very agreeable, after all-it costs no more to bribe the servants for a month than a week, and when you find yourself comfortably lodged where there is bon vin et bonne chere, with a good natured landlord, one is rather loth to depart as soon as he has warmed his toes. And then again these rapid movements allow us only to form a sort of a stage-coach kind of affection for our acquaintances by the wayside—the coachman shuts the door-"all in?" "drive on"-and sight and remembrance are lost at the same moment.

The following Recipe, which we find in the Baltimore Republican, will, we suppose, answer equally well for this meridian :--

Influenza.-As this disease is now raging in town and country, the following cure may be of service to those afflicted: 1 oz extract liquorice, 1 oz paragoric, and 1 oz antimonial wine. POLICE COURT.

The stern severity of the weather, the last few days, has been very effectual in restraining the growth of vagabondism, and only one specimen has been presented to Court this week. Little Johnny Clark was found in a yard, by the watch, drunk, and all pinched up by the nippers of Jack Frost. Being unable to uncoil him, they rolled him to jail, like a beer barrel; and the rotatory motion of this head-over-heels mode of transportation, soon created a brisk circulation of the vital fluid throughout the brief extremities of Johnny's frame, and by the time he was deposited in the lock-up, he was awakened to a sense of his comfortable condition, and thanked the stars that led him thither-ward. He pleaded guilty, with a knowing and self-satisfactory wink of his watery eye, and his delight was further enhanced by the welcome sentence-"six months." Though a 'vagabond and idle person," by preference, Johnny is marked that he had come along just in the right time to previous morning, in a stable belonging to Mr James whitewash the house of correction for the Christmas disagreeable intimation, and retired muttering-"I can were consumed, but the dwelling was saved, and the get whitewashing enough to do without going to the progress of the flames arrested, by blowing up the house of correction six months; and if I had thought to that which prevailed at the time, the Register says they'd set me about that kind of work, I'd seen 'em the consequences would have been most disastrous, and all plastered with pitch afore I'd pleaded guilty." The old adage, "the shoemaker's wife, and the blacksmith's horse always go the worse shod," was illustrated in Johnny, who, though a whitewasher, can't have washed his face white for the "six months last past."

Michael Daley, a fine rosy cheek youth, of some one and twenty, gallanted a fair damsel, who had been exhilarating her upper story a little, to her home, a boarding house, in which she held the equivocal post of 'help." As the evening air was very sharp, upon retiring through the entry, Mike bethought himself that one of the warm box coats pendant on the pegs adjacent, might be made to supply the place of the fair "flame" he had left in the kitchen, easing off her steam; and suiting his action to his thought, he at once enveloped his corporeal man in the liberal folds of the best of the collection, and straightway departed. Unfortunately, the prying curiosity of a mischievous lad was aroused by Mike's manœuvres in the entry, and after he had coolly waited till he had completed his coat appropriating operchase to poor Mike, who being encumbered by a superabundant mass of clothing, was unable to cut dirt as fast as his pursuers. When examined by the watch, he was found to be attired in two dress coats, three vests, two pair of pants, and-read, ye shirtless dandies, with paper dickies-two shirts! Case as plain as a pikestaff, and a trial at the Municipal Court must settle the affair. In the meantime, all persons having missed such garments, as Daley possesses duplicates and even triplicates of, had better call into the jail office, and inspect his travelling wardrobe.

The Beggar of Bethnel Green, by Mr Knowles, was brought out at the Park theatre on Monday evening. The N. Y. Eve. For the Boston Morning Post.

A certain sly politician in Ward No 12 is perfectly understood by the Administration party here, and should be elsewhere-he endeavors to make it appear that he takes no part against the administration party. But his course is sly, still and insidious, wielding the capital of others to a large amount, and knowing the influence which the possession of wealth has over the poor and middling classes, he attends the polls with a London in the ensuing year. This work is from the cigar in his mouth, leans over the ballot-box, and there exerts a silent influence over all who have not nerve enough to run the risk of receiving his displeasure.-This person who has been for years fleecing the Government by his contracts, is applying the lash the gov- of the British Ministry, with the Governors of East ernment contracts furnish him to the backs of its sup-LEONIDAS.

More Assassinations .- On Saturday night about half past nine o'clock, an assassination of a mysterious nature took place in South street. A man, apparently a sailor, was observed sitting on a step, next door to Hurst street, and was supposed to be intoxicated, as when he rose, he staggered across the pavement, and would have fallen, had it not been for a person passing at the moment. It was found, however, that he was stabbed in the breast, the wound having been inflicted with a dagger, or Spanish knife. After uttering a few incoherent words, the unfortunate man expired. He had on a Scotch cap, a Guernsey frock, and a fustian jacket .-The man was found on the city side of South street, close to a Police Station House. Truly our city is advancing rapidly that such horrors should be enacted with impunity early in the evening, in a crowded street, and almost among those whose business it is to protect the citizen .- Pennsylvanian.

Register of Tuesday, mentions that that city has been again visited by fire, and under such circumstances as to afford strong grounds for the belief that it was the work of incendia a white-washer by profession, and when his honor re- ries. > Fire .- Yesterday morning, about 6 o'clock, a fire occurred near the Ferry Landing, in Chelsea, in a small building, improved by Mr Hanscom, as a wheelwright's shop, from which it extended to the blacksmith's shop of Mr Abner L. Gay, thence to a small dwelling-house occupied by Mr Bela Dexter. The three buildings were owned by Mr A. L. Gay, and were entirely consumed. The tools of the workshops were also lostbut fortunately, the furniture belonging to Mr Dexter was saved. We could not learn that there was any insurance on any of the property destroyed. Engines Nos 1, 3, and 5, of Charlestown. and No 15, of this city, were early at the fire .- Mechanics' News Room Bulletin.

Outrageous Robbery .- Our city is infested with a rang of thieves and robbers, that are nightly committing depredations on our citizens, and we trust they will not long elude the vigilance of our police, as their acts have become so daring as to call for the most unceasing efforts to be made for their arrest. The reader will see by an advertisement in another column, that Mr T. Lecknare, of Petersburg, was attacked and knocked down on Thursday night, in Light street, by four rufations, provokingly raised a hue and cry, and gave fians and robbed of $3500. Housekeepers cannot be too careful, nor the police too vigilant-the one to prevent depredations, and the other to arrest those who may commit them .- Balt. American.

> Rio de Janeiro.-The city of Rio de Janeiro is the largest city on the continent of America, with the exception perhaps of New York. In 1827 its population was variously estimated at from 150,000 to 200,000 souls. Like most of the cities in South America, the streets are narrow, being in general not more than twenty to thirty feet wide, although there are some exceptions. The houses are all of stone, rough cast, and of a white or yellow color, and rarely more than two stories high. Within the area of the city, there are four high hills, upon one of which stands the convent of St Antonio, upon another the signal staff and the church of St Sebastian, the patron saint of the city, the true name of which is the city of St Sebastian of Rio de fies the River of January, the bay upon which the city stands, (which was first thought to be a river) having Latin word flumen, a river. A Mystery Explained .- A family in this city had and the play, though not equal to the Hunchback, or known hand. Servants left the dwelling in dismay ; the at nightfall the faces of the inmates of the house bore a sombre and melancholy aspect; the children refused to go to their beds as usual; all was dire dismay; continual walking and starting, agitated and disturbed the rest of all. For some time this state of things continued --ever and anon a tremulous peal of the bells struck terror into their hearts. During one of these fearful moments, a servant happened to pass that part of the house where all the bells connected, she observed a favorite tabby of her mistress busily engaged in pulling jerk, thus creating an alarm in the family, which threatened destruction to their peace for her catship's amusement. This little incident now furnishes many an hour -N Y. Star.

> The mask of Napoleon which was presented by Dr Antomarchi to the city of New Orleans, is from a plaster cast of Napoleon's face, taken a few hours after his death. The late Emperor's features appear generally emaciated-more resembling the outlines of his portraits when first consul or general of the republic, than when he attained the height of his ambition. The forehead is contracted and furrowed, and the temples are depressed; the nose is greatly sharpened, and indented at the nostrils; and the lips appear feebly compressed. Considered in a physiognomical or phrenological point of view, the mask of the deceased Emperor does very little justice to the genius of the successful

"HIRD EDITION OF THE PIRATES.—THE SENTENCE, to DEATH, of the Pirates, together with SENTENCE, to DEATH, of the Pirates, together with their Protests, is contained in GULLIVER'S Third Edition of the Report of the Trial of the Spanish Pirates, and this day published at Stationer's Hall, 82 State street—WITH ENGRA-VINGS. This Report of the Trial was made by a competent person, who was on the spot from the beginning to the end of the Trial, and may be depended upon for its correctness. It contains all the evidence, and enough of the arguments on both sides to enable any one to form an opinion of the guilt or innocence of the prisoners. The advantages of this edition innocence of the prisoners. The advantages of this edition, are its cheapness, it conciseness, (enabling any one to arrive at the merits of the case, without wading through a mass of unimportant matter,) and its lilustrations of the evidence on fine Wood Engravings, as also the representation of African Scenery, Piratical Customs, etc. etc., all of which serve to give it additional interest.

NDIGESTION, JAUNDICE AND BILIOUS COMPLAINTS. ANDERSON'S VEGETABLE ELIXIR, for Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Jaundice and Bilious Complaints; weakness of the Stomach and Bowels, and consequent loss of appetite; nervous complaints, headach, sour stomach, flatu lence and habitual costiveness.

This medicine is composed entirely of vegetable substances, is perfectly safe in its operation, and may be given to children or persons of the most delicate habit, without the least risk of inconvenience.

The uniform success which has attended the use of it where it has been extensively used, in Boston and various other parts of the United States, and in the West Indies, attested by disin terested and highly respectable persons, affords, next to a trial of the medicine itself, the best commentary upon its virtues, and the best recommendation which can be offered to those who are unacquainted with it.

Extract of a letter received from a gentleman in Boston, who ad suffered severely from indigastion for these years.

had suffered severely from indigestion for three years. 'During this time, I suffered very much from mental depression, constant pain in the head and breast, and side, sharp shooting pains over almost the whole system—the food that I ate seemed to over almost the whole system—the food that I at seemed to pass into my lungs and there remain, giving me great pain at tended with a strong degree of heat. At times, I suffered so much from the pain of indigestion as to be confined to the bed for two or three days. During one of these most severe attacks, I was induced by the advice of a friend to try your Vegetable Medicine. In the course of a few weeks I found myself much better, and by the time I had taken two bottles, considered myself wholly free from the complaint. I continue, on the least feeling of any thing like indigestion or pressure on the stomach, to take about a table spoonful of it, which, in the course of a few hours, completely restores me. It has had with me a very wonderful effect, in strengthening the stomach and invigorating the whole system, and judging by my own case, I consider it in all diseases connected with the digestive organs, to be a very valuable medicine.

It has been found singularly efficacious in cases of the most It has been found singularly efficacious in cases of the most

A W. cannot be at the expense to enumerate more cases, at present. He has not named cases of fevers, they are almost too ephemeral in the hands of a physician acquainted with his duty—the ignoramus or continued fever, is unknown in the practice of such. Delicacy will not not permit the naming of several diseases, which he has treated with universal success. In almost all the cases of diseases which have been treated by him, he has been under the necessity to expel not only the disease, but the poisons which produced and continued them—and all with innocent and Harmless simples.

This practice induces him to believe he is not too bold in saying, the Thomsonian treatment removes both disease and the poisons af the Medical Faculty from the human system, when resorted to in seasonable time.
